

MOLLY WOLF

Molly received her B. S. in Biology from the University of Denver and obtained her Medical Technologist license in 2013. She earned her MBA with a concentration in Healthcare Administration from Colorado Christian University. Molly worked in the clinical laboratory at National Jewish Health for over ten years, starting as a Clinical Technologist before becoming the Immunology Laboratory Supervisor. During that time, she aided in the development of numerous diagnostic assays in the areas of autoimmune and immunodeficiency disorders, and metal hypersensitivity. Molly ended her tenure at National Jewish Health as the Clinical Laboratory Manager overseeing multiple departments including Immunology and Pharmacokinetics.

Currently, Molly is living in Vail, Colorado supervising the inpatient laboratory for Vail Health Hospital. Although she is now focused on core laboratory operations, she is looking forward to expanding the hospital's laboratory services to meet the growing needs of the Western Slopes and High Country.
